The East Cliff, Whitby, Whitby has its roots deep in history. The home of St. Hilda and Cædmon, it was the nursery of northern Christianity and the birthplace of English song. Back through the rolling centuries we see the noble woman who planted the Cross on the rocks of Whitby. Here on East Cliff stand the ruins of St. Hilda's Abbey, exposed to all the winds that blow. Founded in 566, the Abbey flourished until the Dissolution in the sixteenth century.
